Botany, M.A. in Marathi and Hindi. We have Ph.D. centres for the subjects Botany and Hindi.

About The Conference

The present conference 'Indian Languages, Literature and Culture in the Global Context' provides an opportunity for academic scholars, researchers with different backgrounds and experiences to present their research in the conference and to discuss their ideas and research outcomes as well as any practical challenges encountered and solutions adopted during their work. The aim of this conference is to facilitate a platform for networking, sharing, publishing and nurturing the potential growth of individual scholars across the globe. In the present context when most of the social, economic, cultural and political practices are evolving and changing at greater magnitude, there are many areas where linguists and researchers have to study and analyse the nature of change and its impact on human relationships and communication. The conference attempts to focus on innovative ideas and developments. Research papers related to the areas of culture, language and literature are invited for publication and presentation in the conference.
